Prompt: Who is the worst teacher you ever had? Why were they so bad?

The worst teacher I have ever had is my sixth grade teacher, T. Zhang, because she is eccentric. For example, she once gave an assignment, and the content of the assignment was to draw your imagination based on the description of the appearance of a character. My homework was rejected because she thought I wasn't trying my best, but all of my classmates were drawing casually and I was the only one who was scolded. However, after I redrew it and gave it to her, she didn't even look at it and said that I didn't draw seriously at all. If that was the case, she didn't even need to pay for glasses because she wasn't even using her eyes.

Another reason T. Zhang is such a bad teacher is because she will displace her anger onto other people. For example, our class is divided into five groups, and our homework is handed in according to these groups. After we turn work in, each group of homework is clipped together, and the same homework is stacked together. This way, it is easier for T. Zhang to know who didn't turn in the homework. If she was in a good mood, she would tell me to hand my homework directly to her. On the other hand, if she was in a bad mood, she would tell me to find the homework of our group and put my own into the pile. It takes a lot of time to find my own group in a stack of heavy books, so if sometimes I was late after swimming practice, I would put my homework on her desk. Sometimes, she would be angry, sometimes she wouldn't, it was all based on her mood.

The last reason I hate her so much is because she is nosy and selfish. For example, our music teacher is a nice woman. She allows students who don't have time to eat breakfast because they have to practice for the school's sports team to eat during her classes. T. Zhang scolded us after she found out about this, and ordered us not to eat in music class. It's none of her business. In conclusion, because she is eccentric, nosy, selfish, and her anger is unpredictable, she was the worst teacher.
